Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 14 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Mainly dry on Friday but staying cold.

This Evening and Tonight:
Any rain should clear this evening. Cloud will begin to thin leading to clear skies and a widespread rural frost. Fog patches may form later. Cold with light winds. More cloud over Kent with perhaps the odd wintry shower. Minimum temperature -1 deg C (30 deg F).

Friday:
Another cold day ahead with a rural frost and areas of fog clearing slowly. Some sunny spells are likely before cloud increases later, showers possible near the Kent coast. Maximum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Windy with rain and snow on Saturday, possible accumulations over the Downs. Mainly dry, bright, but cold on Sunday. Less cold on Monday with wind and rain arriving later.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.